Warren's Bill Provides for "Solid Structure" Barracks.

Congressman J. J. This boy was given the same treat-ment used in the first cured case an-nounced a couple of weeks ago. "Car-bolic acid snow" was used throughout and practically the same course of treatment was followed with like results. When the boy was first taken to the station he had leprous sores on the face and on his legs. These have all disappeared and new skin, slightly lighter in color than the surrounding cuticle, has replaced that "burned" away by the snow.

fan and hie out under the shady trees.

Oh, there have been a few bursts of talk in the senate. There has been an effort at daily sessions. Senator Borah is trying to get his resolution for the popular election of senators under way a little, but it is a hard task. Senators want to speak. They will not agree to a vote till they have a chance speak, but the weather is so hot that they do not want to put forth the effort to prepare the speech. A few of the old talk pare the speech. A few of the old talkers have speeches in their systems and have been talking said speeches out. But that drives everybody away from the snate, which has certainly become a dreary place.

pose. Throughout the whole day a constant stream of people could be seen coming and going from the graves.

The plumaria trees, planted throughout the cemeteries, added their tribute. Just at this time of the year they are in full blossom and the heavy scent of the waxlike flowers stirred as incense across mound and tomb, while the wind blew the full blossoms to the ground and in many places the plots were covered with them. Many of the decoration sehemes worked out on the graves were made from these flowers. One of the noticeable features of the plots there was nothing to mark the fact that someone slept there except that a wreath of flowers had here is some compensation. Why not let 'em aweat and grunt up there in congress? Probably you know that their salaries are costing the country nothing extra. You and I and the rest of the people have to pay them $7500 a year with all the perquisites the salary grabbers can squeeze in on us. The extra expense on account of the Republican dawdling in the senate is confined largely to the consumption of apollinaris water which the government has to pay for out of the senate is confined largely to the plots there was nothing to mark the fact that someone slept there except that a wreath of flowers had here laid.

No one can tell when or where or how the senate is going to unlock itself. The regulars have their hands firmly clinched upon the throats of the in-surgents and the insurgents have their hands lovingly entwined around the necks of the regulars, and both sides are holding on with grim determination that spells political death. Of course, the Demograts are not willing to step in and take sides on this domestic quarrel. That would not be good poli-tics and it might serve as a bad prece-dent when the Democrats get control of the senate themselves one of these days, as the Republicans seem bound they shall.

All the same, the game has lost pop ular interest. There is very little con-cern about it now, concern of the sort that makes front page pieces in the newspapers. But while the inefficient senate is cutting up such uninteresting didoes the great hot waves inundate us. Records Lost and Held.

It is very unseasonable to talk about any fire and especially about the Albany fire because it happened several weeks ago. But the fact that a lot of very valuable historic records were burned at Albany is just dawning upon some officials of Washington. The departments simply bulge with ancient some officials of Washington. The de-partments simply bulge with ancient and musty records, many of which are more or less valuable for the informa-tion of future generations. Some one ascertained the other day, for example, that numerous ancient and very valu-able papers pertaining to the District of Columbia are stored in the combus-tible stile of a building here that the tible attic of a building here that the government ronts. One of these documents is the original plan of the streets and avenues of Washington, drawn, of course, by L'Enfant, the distinguished French engineer and friend of dent Washington. A marble slab to his memory has just been placed at Arling-ton, with President Taft and Ambassador Jusserand participating in the core fashionable part of the town as a site for a National Hall of Records. Two for a National Hall of Records. Two or three score of property owners, among whom was the late Secretary of State John Hay, obtained fancy prices for their property (as always sappens when the government buys realty in Washington). But after a great time is getting possession of the property, congress halted. The money was never appropriated for the building. Year after year the secumulation of official papers has gone on and the exposure of the old papers and documents to fire and to moisture goes on.

To be sure, a great part of these government papers and records are of little or no value. Nevertheless there are thousands and thousands of such papers annually which are worth preserving for various reasons, but which do not for various reasons, but which do not get into fireproof receptuales by any means. The government safes are not large enough to hold such papers and practically none of the department buildings have any receptuales that deserve being called steel vaults. But there is also great need of some system for handling these government papers and for determining what shall be thrown away. The law is now very strict about destroying these records, for which reason much is saved that could well be burned or macerated.

They finally advised me to try a certain medical college, but it a treatment did no good. At the time I was induced to try Cuticura him him on bandages, as it was impossible to touch him with the bare hand. There was not one aquare inch of skin on his whole body that was not affected. He was one mass of sores. The bandages used to stick to his skin and in removing them it used to take the skin off with them, and the screams from the poor child were heartbreaking. I began to think that he would never get well, but after the second application of Cuticura Ointment I began to see signs of improvement, and with the third and fourth applications the sores commenced to dry up. His skin peeled off twenty times, but it finally yielded to the treatment. Now I can say that he is entirely cured, and a stronger and healthier boy you never saw than he is to-day, twelve years or more since the cure was effected. The steady growth of the city during the past twelve months is shown strikingly in the figures given in connection with the new Polk-Husted Directory, to be issued from the presses of the Hawaiian Gazette Company within a few days. The Oahu section of the book is now complete and the pages relating to the other islands are being run off and carted to the bindery, the expectation being that the completed volume will be on sale on Monday next.

The Cahu section for 1911 contains three thousand four hundred more three thousand four hundred more names of residents than the directory of last year, giving a total for this island of 25,126. Using the multiple generally employed to secure a population figure from directory totals—three and one-quarter—it is seen that the figure for this island is 81,659, which includes none of the plantation laborers. The official census figures for this island, secured last year, give the total population, plantation laborers and all, at 81,993.

R. W. Robinson, the superintendent of the directory work in Hawaii, in discussing the 1911 directory, states that in the recent canvass made of the city it was extended. that in the recent canvass made of the city it was extraordinary how few vaccant stores or houses were found, the number being less than ten per cent of those usually found by directory canvassers.
